Girl Scouts Spirit of Nebraska and MCC Fort Omaha Intertribal Powwow Patch Program

The Metropolitan Community College Fort Omaha Intertribal Powwow offers Girl Scouts an opportunity to learn about Native American cultures, traditions, history, art, music, dance, foods, and contemporary tribal communities.

This patch program is designed to encourage respectful observation, participation, cultural learning, and reflection. Girl Scouts should spend enough time at the Powwow to meaningfully participate in the required number of activities for their level. While they are not expected to attend the entire event, completion of the patch should reflect a genuine Powwow experience rather than a brief visit.

How to Participate

Girl Scouts should complete the required number of activities for their Girl Scout level and spend enough time at the Powwow to engage meaningfully in the experience.

Before leaving, Girl Scouts should have their troop leader/adult verify completion of the activity requirements. Patches will not be distributed on-site at the Powwow. They're available for purchase at the Girl Scout Shop or by emailing shop@girlscoutsnebraska.org.

Before You Begin: Powwow Respect and Etiquette

A powwow is a cultural gathering and should be approached respectfully.

- Listen to and follow instructions given by the emcee and arena director.
- Ask permission before taking close-up photographs of dancers or individuals.
- Do not take photographs when the emcee announces that photography is not permitted.

- Never touch another person's regalia, feathers, instruments, artwork, or personal belongings without permission.
- Be respectful of the drum and the people surrounding it.
- Stand and remove hats when instructed during prayers, honor songs, flag songs, or other ceremonial moments.
- If visitors are invited to participate in an intertribal dance, Girl Scouts may respectfully join.
- Remember that Native American people and tribal nations are part of contemporary American life, not simply people or cultures from the past.

Regalia, Not Costume

Powwow dancers wear regalia, not costumes. A costume is generally clothing worn to portray a character or pretend to be someone or something else. Powwow dancers are not pretending to be Native American.

Regalia may include clothing, beadwork, feathers, jewelry, moccasins, and other items that can hold personal, family, cultural, tribal, or spiritual meaning.

Throughout your Powwow experience, use the word regalia when referring to what dancers wear.

Daisy Girl Scouts

Complete at least 4 activities.

1. Regalia, Not Costume

Tell an adult why we use the word regalia instead of costume when talking about what powwow dancers wear.

2. Practice Powwow Respect

Learn two ways to show respect while attending a powwow.

3. Learn About a Nebraska Tribal Nation

Learn the name of one Native American tribal nation connected to Nebraska and one fact about it.

4. Listen to the Drum

Listen to a drum group. Describe what you hear.

5. Watch a Dance

Watch a powwow dance and notice the movement, music, and regalia.

6. Discover Beadwork

Find an example of beadwork. Notice the colors, patterns, and how it is being used.

7. Explore Quilts and Textiles

Look for a quilt, star quilt, clothing, or another textile item. Talk about the colors, patterns, or designs you see.

8. Explore Native Foods

Try a Native food available at the Powwow or learn about one. Tell someone what you learned.

9. Learn About the Powwow Princess

Find out who the Powwow Princess is and watch for her during the Powwow. Talk about why representing the Powwow and community is a special honor.

10. Join When Invited

If visitors are invited into the arena for an intertribal dance, participate respectfully with your troop or family.

11. Grand Entry — If You Are There

If you arrive in time, watch Grand Entry and talk about what you see and hear.

12. My Powwow Memory

Share your favorite part of the Powwow and one thing you learned.

For Adult Leaders and Families

Adults are encouraged to help girls observe, ask questions, and reflect on what they experience.

Try asking:

- What did you notice?
- What surprised you?
- What did you learn?
- What would you like to know more about?

- How did you show respect?
- What was your favorite part of the Powwow?

Adults should not ask dancers, elders, artists, or other Native participants to answer questions simply so a girl can complete a patch requirement. Respect for people and the cultural gathering always comes first.

About the MCC Fort Omaha Intertribal Powwow

The Fort Omaha Intertribal Powwow is held at Metropolitan Community College's historic Fort Omaha Campus. The annual gathering celebrates Native American dance, music, regalia, oral history, artistry, food, community, and cultural traditions while providing opportunities for learning and cultural exchange.

Fort Omaha also holds historical significance through its connection to Ponca Chief Standing Bear and his people.

Come to learn. Listen with respect. Participate when invited. Leave knowing more than when you arrived.
